Chelan County Economic Services Department Request for Proposals

Tourism Impact Study

Deadline: September 9, 2024 – 5:00pm

Chelan County Economic Services is seeking proposals from qualified firms to provide a comprehensive Tourism Impact Study. The study aims to assess the socio-economic, environmental, and cultural impacts of tourism activities in our region. The findings will inform strategic planning and sustainable development initiatives within the tourism sector.

Scope of Work

Chelan County has a vibrant tourism economy and desires to gain a better understanding of the collective impacts the industry has on the County.

The Tourism Impact Study should contain the following:

1. A thorough analysis of tourism trends, including visitor demographics, travel patterns, activities, expenditures, frequency of visits, length of stay and lodging types and choices.
2. Analyze and compare the downstream economic impacts from the various types of overnight accommodations. This should include short term rentals, hotels, bed and breakfasts, camping and staying with family or friends.
3. Assessing the economic impact of tourism on local businesses, employment and revenue generation.
4. Evaluating the environmental impact of tourism activities on our natural resources, ecosystems and trails, paths and parks.
5. Evaluating local community amenities and how tourism impacts them, including if the community would have the amenities without tourism.
6. Analyzing the social and cultural effects of tourism on local communities, including community well-being and community access.
7. Local Community and County costs associated with tourism, i.e., increased infrastructure needs, search and rescue, emergency medical, waste management, additional law enforcement for events and holidays.
8. Impact of tourism on housing in Chelan County including the impact short-term rentals may have had on the cost of housing.
9. Amenity/activity gap analysis. What activities amenities or businesses are missing that will enhance the visitor's experience.
10. Recommendations for enhancing the positive impacts of tourism while mitigating negative impacts.
11. Comparison of Chelan County to other counties with high tourism economies.

Key Deliverables

1. Detailed report outlining the findings of the study, including data analysis, methodologies and key insights
2. Presentation of the study results to the Lodging Tax Advisory Committee and County Commissioners.
3. Executive summary highlighting the main conclusions and recommendations for policy-makers and industry stakeholders.
