Aerial Search, Ground Search, and Crime Tip Follow Up Continues

Law Enforcement Personnel Continue Active Search and Investigation with assistance from Spokane County Air Support while more federal investigators arrive to assist with the investigation.

CCSO and our partners from multiple agencies across the region, state, and nation continue a large-scale search for Travis Decker. The Spokane County Sheriff's Office provided two helicopters to assist in search operations spanning across Chelan County, the local national forest and wilderness areas. The CCSO Air Support Unit is also conducting air operations in similar areas, providing more eyes in the sky and opportunities to find the suspect.

In addition to search resources, additional federal agents and law enforcement investigators arrived at the Command Post this morning to provide their assistance. The self-sacrificing support our Deputies and partners provide is a testament to the profession, and shows their dedication to the victims, their family, and our community. We are extremely grateful to have each of them on the team.

In addition to our law enforcement support, the numerous tips that have come in from the public is greatly appreciated, along with the many offers for assistance from off road vehicle owners, and backcountry experts to provide guide services, equipment, and even horses if needed. Again, the display of the commitment to each member of this community has to each other is on great display.

A change to the tip line process: Anyone with information is urged to call the CCSO tip line at 509-667-6845 or submit your information here:

CCSO will hold a press conference on the steps of the Chelan County Courthouse tonight at 6pm to provide any potential updates to the ongoing investigation.
